

Do you love yourself? How about your sisters, aunts, grandmas, great-grandmas, what about your mom? I'm sure that is a yes! Did you know that in China they have this law called the "One Child Policy"? As a result of this policy there are a lot of children in China that do not know who any of these people are because of this "One Child Policy"! Do you think that you can go your whole life not knowing who these people are? I know I couldn't!

According to the British Medical Journal there are 32 million more boys than girls under the age of 20 in China! Just imagine if you were one of those girls in that situation, and you were pretty much enjoying life at this point and then one day it's all gone and you can do nothing about it. Well, here's another Scenario for you. You are a mother that is expecting a child; you have a child and the doctor puts the baby in your arms and says "It's a girl!"; the doctor and your husband has a look on their face like their disgusted; you don't know what's going on at this point; next thing you know they take the baby; you don't know why so you kick and scream, but all your husband does is hold you down and whispers in your ear and says "It has to be done!"; and kills your child right before your eyes! I just gave you a little taste of what the majority of the women in China go through every other day of their lives. Can you have a sat their and let your child or sister die?

How would you feel to be limited to only having one child that has to be a boy or its life is gone forever? What about having to get a paper signed just so you can have another child? How would you feel? Let me tell you this now, I would feel like I'm a bad parent for not being able to get my child out of that situation. I would fell like my child is not truly mine that it belongs to the government. The sad part about it is that nobody in America even tried to help them gain back control of their lives. When I read this article it made me want to go to China and save all the children MYSELF!

So the next time you say to your sister "I wish you were never born". Think twice about it because if you were in China you wouldn't have a sister to argue with! And when you say your life is horrible think about the little infants that didn't even get a chance to further explore life to get to that point. The world is bigger than me and you!
