We Care About Your Safety! Mythbusters Test Possibility of Water Heater Explosion

On every water heater, a warning label clearly outlines the dangers of improper installation. The warning label reads:

Warning - Explosion Hazard
If the temperature and pressure relief valve is dripping or leaking, have a licensed plumber repair it.
Do not plug valve.
Do not remove valve.
Failure to follow these instructions can result in death or explosion.

(photos to come next month newsletter on improper installations)

This warning label should be self-explanatory, but homeowners may choose to cut costs and avoid paying for a Licensed Plumber to address their water heater issues. Or, some plumbers may not be adequately licensed, or may not follow plumbing laws and regulations.

Mythbusters recently tested the possibility of a water heater exploding due to improper installation. Their discovery, which has proved true for a few homeowners, is surprising. See what could happen if a water heater is not properly installed: Watch Video

To ensure the safety and welfare of your family, we recommend that you Check The Credentials of the companies hired to work in your home. You may want to inquire about their experience, or even ask them for their license number.
