

Happy June!!!

Just wanted to take this time half way through the year to say "Thank You" to all of you who put countless ours into the clothing for these babies. Your hands relentlessly pick up knitting needles, crochet hooks, you sit behind sergers and sewing machines without any compensation (many times using your own resources) to do something for others. Others that you will never see. And the clothing and quilts/afghans you make! Seriously, so very cute and some of the items will become heirlooms, being passed down to other sweet angels. One of the joys I have, especially at Pre-pack, is to see the new items that have been made. Not only the volume of things, but the quality! I have never been in need to the degree that some of the families find themselves in, but I have read a few of the Thank You notes. Very humbling. So, thank you stitchers, your handiwork is appreciated.

Have you ever moved your sewing (craft) room? I just did....I flipped our guest room and my sewing room and oh my word, the stuff! ALL the stuff! We have lived in our house for 19 years and like most people, things (fabric, yarn, craft items, books) get stashed away for a, "I'm sure I can use that someday..." reason. And I won't even discuss what the baseboards looked like...gasp. I guess it is good to shake things up every once in awhile. Still trying to figure out where things go in the new space. But it has been fun to think back on the many projects I have done through the years. Anyway, on to all things JUNE, Tiny Stitches and summer happenings!

You may want to stop by the office next time you are in and introduce yourself and welcome them on behalf of TS.

I am sew happy that it is cool still in the mornings!

(I have included a pic below to explain why I always sign my name that way.

This is part of my sewing room, my sewing/embroidery and vinyl cutting table. The sergers, yarn/crochet, fabric and scrapbooks are squirreled away in other parts of the room. Now that the girls are graduated and gone, I am fortunate to have a room to myself. It is my happy place, my joy. )
