

JOHN DEWEY'S QUALITATIVE STARTING POINT:

PRACTICAL S.P.:

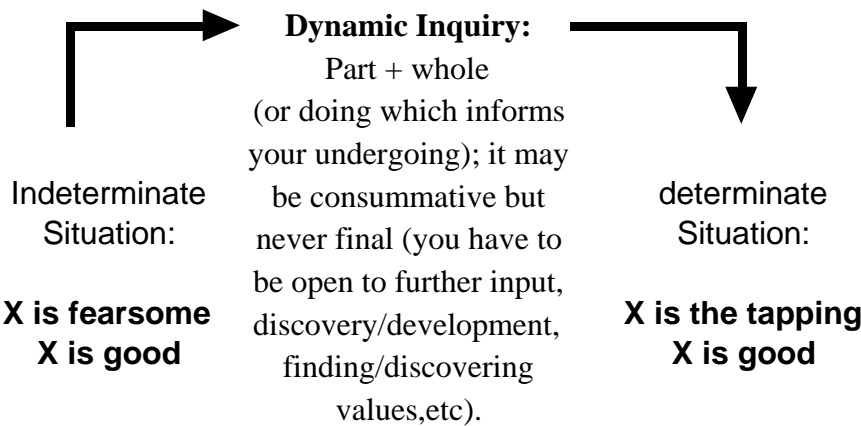

“The immediate existence of quality...is the background, the point of departure, & the regulative principle of all thinking.”
 ~ John Dewey

NOT THEORETICAL S.P.:

Dynamic inquiry involves imagination, reasoning, logic, habits, emotions, investigative process, entertaining hypotheses, looking for the evidence; it is all practice, activity, experience, there is a continuity, no gap between mind/body; there is always doing & undergoing.

DEWEY'S INTERPRETATION OF QUALITIES:

- Traditional logic: qualities become important or are treated as properties & it lacks context.
- Subjective: there is no subject vs. object qualities; rather we are participants; active in social discourse.
- Unique, had change:
- Tertiary:
- Not knowledge but guiding and funded:
